

The curriculum at our school is delivered to all children by class teachers, ensuring pupils receive a high level of first quality teaching. Children work within their own class or within year groups where the teacher and teaching assistants provide additional support in a variety of ways including those with special educational needs and/or difficulties. This may include; participating in intervention groups and accessing 1:1 support where appropriate. This will be planned and assessed by the class teacher.

The class teacher plans, delivers, assesses and reviews work for all pupils in their class. Where a child has a special need and/or difficulty the teacher will adjust the curriculum accordingly. This may include access to a laptop, I pad, special or adapted furniture and equipment, support with physical activities.

Children with SEND and medical conditions are encouraged to participate in trips and visits where adaptations will be made: additional 1:1 support, modifications to equipment, dietary requirements.

The school works closely with external agencies, including those associated with education and health, to ensure all the needs of our pupils are met. This may be through 1:1 or small group work in school, providing advice and resources or a scheme of work to follow.

The external agencies include: Educational Psychology Service, Inclusion Team, occupational therapy, physiotherapist, school health, CAMHS, TAMHS, play therapy, visual and hearing impaired services.

All children are included in all areas of the curriculum to ensure they strive to reach their full potential.

Parents are notified, in the first instance, by the class teacher of any additional support provided for their child. They will be invited into school to discuss how their child will be supported and who will deliver the support. Parents are encouraged to work in partnership with school to ensure their child can participate in all aspects of school life and reach their potential.
